Pastor/Maestro Nehemiah H. Brown is a singer, pianist, composer, arranger, choral director, voice teacher, and translator.

A native son of Charlottesville, Virginia, he sang his first solo at the church his father pastored at the age of 6 and began piano lessons at age 11. He studied Composition and Popular and Jazz Harmony at the University of Virginia; African American Vocal Technique at the University of Massachusetts; and piano and vocal with "Hollywood Vocal Coach" Martin Grustin. He moved to Florence, Italy to finish his degree in Italian Studies in 1996, where he has lived and worked since.

He has appeared on numerous Italian television shows and hosted his own show on Italian radio. Among his accolades, his composition, "Time to Heal" was featured on Italian Television in 2008 on the day of the Obama election. He wrote and performed, "Save the Children" for "Children in Crisis" with Sarah Ferguson and the Pitti Imagine Fashion Show in Florence, Italy. He performed with actor/director Tim Robbins at the Florence Unity in Diversity Conference and has performed for British Royalty as well as for Pope John Paul II and Benedict XVI.

In addition to performing extensively, Mr. Brown has worked as music director for several churches and has founded many choirs in the USA and Europe. He currently serves as senior pastor of the Florence Gospel Fellowship International and works through the Florence Gospel Choir School (www.fgcschool.com), which he co-founded.

A stylized illustration in shades of orange and white. At the top, a group of figures representing a choir is shown in silhouette, with some holding what appear to be musical instruments. Below them, a musical staff with several notes is depicted. The background consists of various geometric lines and shapes, creating a dynamic, abstract composition.

The WORKSHOP is open to children, youth, and adults of all ages and will run Friday evening and Saturday morning and afternoon (November 10-11). Sunday morning the choir will sing at Emmanuel Episcopal Church and then hold a full CONCERT there at 17h (November 12). Join us!! And encourage friends to join the workshop or attend the concert!
